Community & fellowship go hand in hand

The annual Trinity fundraiser, the Gathering, is a celebration where family, friends, and faculty give praise to God. On October 9th and 10th in the Mitchell Memorial Gymnasium, an estimated 1,200 people attended the festivities, a turnout larger than those did in previous years.

Each night began with an opening prayer by President A.J. Anglin, followed by a dinner. A variety of Trinity ensembles set the tone by providing background music. Throughout the evening students entertained alumni, guests, and students by demonstrating their talents of singing, acting, and signing. The concert choir performed their more traditional songs, then the gospel choir changed the tempo by singing upbeat numbers, accompanied by hand clapping and swaying. The band, Honors Ensemble, and Wind Ensemble added to the celebration.

At the end of the evening, Board of Trustees Chairman William Weidenaar announced that an anonymous $4 million donation had been made towards a new 1,200-seat chapel performance center. Soon after, another anonymous donor was moved to make the remaining $1 million donation needed to complete the building

Just Froggin' Around

Trollstock is an immensely popular festival at Trinity. For those that have never heard of Woodstock, Trollstock is Trinity's version of the 1960's arts and music festival. This year there was a huge variety of acts ranging from a slew of acoustical guitar acts, folk music, heavy metal, ska, and some plays and skits. To start things off, a young up and coming ska group named Buck performed while students, braving the cold, enjoyed a barbecue style dinner. Buck brought energy to the stage and helped to melt the ice that seemed to keep Trinity students from getting involved. Some of the more popular performances were a rendition of "If I had a Million Dollars," Alice in Chains' "Nutshell," and a skit about talking to girls that turned out to be a clever reading of Shakespeare. However, the best of Trollstock '98 was definitely the Lumberjacks who performed a rendition of a Monty Python skit. All in all, Trollstock '98 was very successful. It is bound to continue as a tradition here at Trinity.

A Change of Scenery

During the 1999 interim, students traveled to places such as Israel, Mississippi, Italy, the Philippines, and even to sunny Jamaica. The trip to Israel is one that would have been of interest to all of the students at Trinity because of its biblical significance. "We had a lot of fun and we learned a lot," states freshman Laura Marion. Another exciting trip for the year was the trip to Jamaica. Third year nursing students took the time to help out at St. Anne's Bay Hospital in areas such as labor and delivery and pediatrics. Junior Tina VanDriessen states that the purpose of the trip was to "Be Christ's servants in a Third World Country and enjoy His beautiful creation." The Mississippi Interim was another memorable one. The basis of this trip was to tutor students, perform work projects, and tour area ministries. The Interim to the Philippines was a complete success. Students traveled to Los Banos and stayed at the University of the Philippines in Los Banos. Scott and Dawn Carr led a group to Italy to see and experience renaissance art. Overall, the Interims this year were a success.

Morning inspiration

Chapel is a time of worship; a time to relax and spend some time in praising God instead of worrying about classes and homework. Chapel is held every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from 10:00 to 10:30. Mondays are student-led, Wednesdays a guest speaker is invited to speak, and Fridays consist of praise and prayer. Chaplain Dave Van Kley sheads up the chapel team. He sees that chapel is a time to "focus on God and why the students are here." His vision for chapel is to include more worship time, have more chapels focused on prayer, and have a band at every chapel. New to this year is an extension of chapel entitled "Bread." Bread is a worship service held twice a month that encourages students who do not go to church, or those who just want to worship to come and participate. Van Kley says, "Bread is a chance for the whole Trinity community to come together to worship and reflect on the Word."

Praise & Worship

Praise and Worship and is a time when we all can get together and praise God through song that is lead by our Praise Band. The Praise band members are Jeff Fiet, Heather Weidenaar, Jeremy Junkin, Keith Schemper, Carl Swanson, Christine Sinclair, and Tamara Jacob.

Another thing about praise and worship is that you better get there early in order to get a good seat because the Chapel fills up really fast. Almost everyone shows up every week to have a good time with friends while, of course, singing and praising the Lord. On occasion, there is a special night of Praise and worship whether it be when a guest band from a upcoming concert plays, favorite night when everyone can request their favorite praise songs to be played, or just coffee or snacks afterwards. A good time is had by all who attend each Thursday and there is nothing better than a spiritual boost towards the end of the week. Bring your friends and your singing voices and hope to see you in the Chapel at ten o'clock!

Late-night study break

With about thirty to fifty students participating in each sport, intramurals appear to be a popular event on campus. Students can get involved in fall sports, which include beach volleyball, four-on-four basketball, Co-ed volleyball, and kickball. In the spring, there's softball, girls and guy's volleyball, and hocksock for activities. During interim students can enjoy kickball, three point basketball contests, and free throw shooting contests, which are all offered to keep students involved during this time period.

Those participating in intramurals do so Monday through Thursday each night for three weeks. Many enjoy intramurals because it gives all a chance to play at a less competitive level. The winners of each sport's tournament receive a Trinity Christian College intramural championship T-shirt.

This year senior Lance Davids keeps intramural sports running smooth and on time.

A Time of "Spirit"

With the red carpet rolled out, the video camera recording, and everyone dressed in their finest, the cafeteria looked like the Ritz Carlton. Well, not quite, it was Oscar Night. But with a musical number performed by Steve Meyers, plenty of laughs from the Lumberjacks, and free prizes for naming the first movie Tom Hanks played in, the night was a smashing success. Each table, adorned with a bottle of sparkling grape juice and shimmering confetti, was in full view of the big screen T.V. enabling us to see the "real" Oscars. And for remembrances of the evening, everyone took home a Polaroid of our friends and loved ones.

The Spirit of Chicago had not even set sail and the party had begun on the night of the Spring formal. The moment the D.J. started playing the tunes people were on the dance floor shaking their groove and rockin' the boat. Freshman Jason Pertion said, 'I was hoping to play Titanic with a girl, but I kept getting the answer, "I'm too seasick."' Although not everyone's wishes came true on this magical boat ride that lasted till 2AM, most had an incredible time!

Witch way to Salem?

The Crucible was a gripping story of Puritan legalism, family struggles, and corrupt justice. This drama showed how a small lie could snowball and turn the lives of an innocent town into turmoil. Imagine a system of justice so intent on keeping its name that it loses all notions of common sense. Imagine the frustrations of losing a husband, mother, or child because of a false accusation by a group of young children. John Proctor, played by Dave VanderMeulen, was forced to face a decision at the heart of the Salem hysteria. Should he falsely confess to witchcraft and by doing so blacken his family name forever? Should he deny this accusation and face hanging? Proctor chose to die.

The Crucible, by Arthur Miller, brings to life the pain of injustice that is still displayed today. The talented cast included: Jonathan Aguilar, Sara Ambroz, Dave Walsh, Ruth Mejias, Amy DeGroot, Keren Zylema, Ann Olsen, Joanne Keizer, Tamara Jacob, Dave VanderMeulen, Jeff Fiet, Nick Bowling, Melissa Rovig, Trisha Mulder, and Chris VanNoord.

A Look at Love

The Department of Communication Arts proudly presented William Shakespeare's Much Ado About Nothing to sold-out crowds during the month of April. This story of the frustrations and joys of love was wonderfully portrayed by talented actors and actresses. Two men and two women find love, lose it, and then find it again, painting a picture of how willing we are to believe what we want to believe. The chapel was transformed into a governor's estate, providing fast-paced and humorous production set in 1830's California. The music used added to the reality and humor of the play, and characters who were up to no good provided interesting twists and turns to the plot. The cast provided a comical look at human nature when it comes to love. Audiences laughed when the characters laughed and cried when they cried, making this production a huge success.

Graduation

The morning of May 15 came all too quickly for me, a freshman. For the seniors, however, it either snuck up on them or it could not have come soon enough. That morning, at Moraine Valley Church many of my friends and classmates graduated from Trinity Christian College, and were off to new adventures with their new degrees. Years of studying, socializing, and practicing all paid off, as one by one each proud senior walked across the stage receiving their diploma and shaking President Anglin's hand. I sat in the balcony and wondered what was in store for my remaining years here at Trinity. I clapped and cheered as teammates, who I spent countless hours with, received their goal, a diploma. It made me smile because I know they, like me are nervous for what lies ahead of them. As Reverend Hamstra talked about the future, I found myself also wishing the best on the seniors; better, the graduates. I hope that God blesses you in your new lives no longer students at Trinity, but as students of life.

Women's Soccer

Some people say that women can't play sports, but the Lady Trolls soccer team this year proved them wrong. Sporting new warm-ups and home uniforms, the team finished their season with five wins, eleven losses and one tie. Freshman Jamie Vander Wal traveled here all the way from Windsor, Colorado to help the trolls have a successful season. Other key players this year were goalie Lisa Bayens, Hillary Reyenga, Jessica Lemke and Leanne Wiersma. Wiersma, also a freshman, showed a great amount of potential throughout the season and is expected to improve as each year passes. The team is also adjusting to a new coach, Jonathon Lenarz. Lenarz led the girls to a better record than last year and Vander Wal called this year a "major improvement." With practices three times a week and from playing in the rain to traveling to tournaments, the team stayed tough through it all. Jamie also added, "I think this was a good season. There were a lot of good times had by all and we will certainly look forward to the 1999 fall season."

Men's Soccer

With a strong sense of team unity, spirit, and character, the men's soccer team, despite injuries, finished their campaign with a 9-12 record. Coach Dave Ribbens, positive about the season as a whole, said although he was not disappointed with the team's efforts, more success was anticipated at the beginning of the year. With the injuries, Ribbens was forced to juggle the lineup on a regular basis.

One step ahead

Brian Nielsen gains speed against his opponent.

According to Ribbens, the lack of continuity at certain positions left the Trolls unable to sustain their lead in games and stop their opponents' attacks in close games. Nine of the eleven losses were by one goal, while three games were lost in overtime.

Coach Ribbens identified five players as keys to the season, all of whom received post-season recognition. Senior Jason Gaudy, sophomore Prince Gehndyu, along with sophomore Wally Ottenhoff, senior Luke VantLand, and senior Jared Haringsam.

Women's Basketball

Despite injuries, adversity, and some mid-season changes, the Trinity Christian College women's basketball team adjusted well enough to finish the season with a winning 17-15 record. Considering the team's struggles, which included starting the season with only nine players, coach Barb Schaaf was impressed with the team and their record.

"We got better as a team, working together and learning our roles," said Schaaf. "That was probably one of the big keys to having a winning season."

Size, rebounding and shooting were the team's strengths, said Schaaf. Inside, the Trolls relied on senior Kari Sytsma (6'3") and sophomore Livy Scholten (6'1").

"I've loved the athletes that I've had," Schaaf said. "I've had four real good teams. ... It's hard to say goodbye to [coaching], but healthwise, I can't coach part-time and work full-time." She wanted to thank the team, however, for a great year.

Men's Basketball

Although the men's varsity basketball team finished their campaign with a winning 19-16 record, it was clouded by the fact that they were 17-10 just one month before the season concluded, said coach Gene Fitzgerald. Nevertheless, the season was considered a success as the Trojans came within reach of winning their conference and going to the NCCAA National Tournament.

While the season ended earlier than desired, there were bright spots to look back on: the team's trip to Florida over Christmas break, a seven-game win-streak during the latter half of the season, and a defeat of Cardinal Stritch University, who tied Kendall College for first place in the conference. Trinity was the only team in the conference to beat Stritch on their home court.

"I think our strength was certainly in our personnel," said Fitzgerald. Senior Eric Lubbers and freshman Kevin Koeman each had outstanding, consistent seasons, he said. Overall, the team was resilient and able to overcome early season woes.

"We had great team chemistry and great team unity," Fitzgerald added. "They were a terrific group of young men to be around and with, and to coach. They represented the school in a really positive way."

Seven Trinity women lifted the crowd's spirit at the men's home basketball games this season. The team was coached by Sara DeRuiter. Here the team improved their stunts and jumps. The team also tossed t-shirts into the crowd when 3-pointers were scored. The troll mascot was unveiled this season. With the help of the cheerleaders, the troll learned a dance to perform for the crowd.

The cheerleaders consisted of Sara De Ruiter, Amy Oldengarm, Debra Vree, Monique

Caston, Toya Ganes, Joanne Keizer, and Lora Earleywine. To raise funds for their program, these women held a cheer clinic on Saturday morning in December. They had a great turn out of 50 Jr. High girls. The team performed more half time shows and less time-out cheers than in past years.

This was the first year the Dance Squad was able to perform with the troll mascot. The troll learned the moves and performed with the squad at a men's basketball game. The squad also performed with the band All Star United which came as a guest concert to Trinity's campus this year.

Women's Volleyball

Deuces were wild this year for the women's volleyball team, as they finished their season with a 22-22 record, double the amount of wins from last year. The increase in wins was partly due to the team's increased intensity level, said coach Sue Gasperec.

Experience was the team's biggest strength, Gasperec said; there was only one new starter on the court for the Trolls—junior transfer Allison Kragt. At the Birmingham Southern Invitational on October 16-17, the Trolls played well and came away in second place.

With a wild card bid, the Trolls also made it to the NCCAA National Tournament at Bethel College (Mishawaka, IN). Trinity, ranked tenth entering the tournament, walked away with a respectable sixth-place finish.

Big shoes will need to be filled next year as the Trolls lost three seniors, Cheryl Mackay (Trinity's all-time career record-holder with 1,589 assists in a season), Linda DeJong, and Alissa Beckering. Recruiting and a solid returning core, including three current juniors, should help.

Men's Volleyball

A strong starting line-up, which included five seniors, allowed the men's volleyball team to finish their status as an intramural sport on a high note, with a 19-12 record.

Seniors Troy Grevenoged and Dan VanderMeer were the team's key players, said coach Steve Chase.

"We had a very good season," said Chase, "but the second half was better than the first."

"Ready! Set! Break"

The team regroupes and comes back strong, and in full force.

During the second half of the season, the Trolls avenged first half, five-game losses against Moody Bible Institute, Lewis University, and the University of Illinois—Chicago.

The 1999-2000 season marks the transition from intramural to varsity status for the men's volleyball team. And, although Chase said there is never an ideal time to go varsity, it is somewhat unfortunate that the team goes varsity the year after it loses five of six starters. With 1-2 years of rebuilding, Chase said, the team should recover.

Softball

When 35 games are crammed into less than a month and a half of play, student athletes must carefully balance their sport's schedule and schoolwork. That balancing act is exactly what eleven committed individuals did this spring as part of Trinity Christian College's softball team.

The balancing act they failed to equalize, however, was the one involving offense and defense.

The running position.

Kim Vlietstra exhibits her perfect running form on the field.

"We started to play strong at the end of the season," said Gasperc. "Defensively, there was improvement from the beginning to the end...but the bats quieted."

The team, overall, lost eight one-run games, but won six of the same.

The team finished their season with a 10-25 record, including a 6-8 conference record.

With such a small team, however, every player was needed to contribute to the effort. They worked well together, Gasperc said, and had strong team unity, which was key.

Baseball

The baseball team was very busy this year. Having six to seven games each week takes a lot of time and energy. The team also played 9 games in Florida over spring break.

Coach Schaaf believes the strength of the team is in the hitting. Helping to keep the team strong were Chris VanTil, Tony Ruffino and Matt Schans along with several returning veterans.

Fourty Years of God's Faithfulness

Monday, April 26, 1999
Orchestra Hall in Chicago was packed with Trinity students, faculty, and alumni. More than 2,220 people attended the celebration. Trinity sent four bus loads of people to this special event. The celebration was put on to celebrate fourty years of God's faithfulness to the school. The choir and honors ensemble sang beautifully. Trinity's band and string ensembles also performed. A mass choir made up of people from many chruches in the area joined in during the finale. The signing clubjioned the band and chior

during the last two songs.
The Praise band was also involved. It played a few favorites from Praise and Worship such as, "Blessed
Be the Name of the Lord"
No one can forget all the great speeches that were made by President Anglin, Trin alumni and the like.

-Amanda Curry

The choir and band performing together.

The great mass of performers including the wind ensemble, the concert choir, the mass choir, and the orchestra.

Mrs. Weiner and the choir filled Orchestra hall with beautiful voices.

Dr. Austin directs the audience with great enthusiasm.

Trinity students and friends formed a small orchestra.

A window gives us the opportunity to see beyond our walls. If we only take the time to look through one, we might see breathtaking beauty. If we open that window, perhaps we will hear new melodies of life and smell tantalizing fresh fragrance. If we would climb through that window, we just may experience mouthwatering tastes, silken touches, and mind-stretching thoughts. I climbed through my own window when I started my voyage on Semester at Sea. Traveling to ten countries, passing uncountable boundaries, I experienced more than I ever could in a classroom. I looked into a Cuban man's eyes as he explained to me how he earns only $12 a month. I listened to the giggle of a Kenyan Masai Mara child. I touched the massive trees in the Amazon rain forests while fishing for piranha. I smelled the thousand smells of India. I tasted the street food of Vietnam. And as I sailed around the world, I also explored the story of my life. Digging deep to discover the faith that moves me forward, I'm learning to navigate by faith and to trust my Captain, Jesus. We might sail directly into a beautiful sunset or a turbulent dawn. Whatever it may be, each of us must first find the window, look out of it, open it, and climb through it. Who knows what adventures lay ahead and what you may learn about yourself.

Bon voyage! Cami

The 1999 "Allelu" contains 128 pages. There have been 250 books ordered to sell for $20 to anyone at Trinity Christian College. The cover was designed by Cami Agema and Dawn Carr. It is leathertex with evergreen in color. The theme "Window to the World" is portrayed throughout to "Allelu".

As Cami said we all have to climb through windows to find what God has in store for our lives. This second semester of my freshman year I had to climb through a window. Taking Cami's place was not easy to do half way through the year but with a lot of help from the staff everything got done. I would like to thank those who really were a blessing to me these last few months. Our Herff Jones representative, Linda Conrath, was so helpful in any questions I had. I also can't go without pointing out the staff members that did extra work to finish this book. Kelly Kostelyk did so much work on the computer and many little things to finish each page. Nick de Vries helped me to catch up on how the yearbook is done here and survived being the only man among the craziness of an all girl staff! Melissa Groot helped extra in writing story copy, captions and taking pictures. Besides the staff I got help from a few outside people. "The girls", you know who you are, got me out of some problems with donating pictures of everything. Anna Marie Stastny was always around in case of emergencies and was always willing to help, even when she had Chemistry of Biology to do. Also Kevin Koeman has been my sanity after crazy meetings or when we're trying to make a deadline, (thanks Hun!). All around this has been a learning experience for me. I have so many ideas for 2000 "Allelu" I can't wait to get started!

Whether it be on a voyage or here at Trinity the windows to a different view of the world are open, we just have to take the chance and climb through them.
